14th World Congress on Design & Health (WCDH 2025)

The Mission for a Salutogenic Healthy Society in Singapore – Fostering a Healthy Environment for Healthy People

Dear Esteemed Colleagues and Friends

It is with great pleasure that we invite you to the 14th World Congress on Design & Health (WCDH 2025), held in collaboration with the Ministry of Health Singapore, National University of Singapore, Singapore Institute of Architects, and other esteemed global academic and healthcare institutions. Taking place at the award-winning Pan Pacific Orchard, Singapore, from October 29 to November 2, 2025, this prestigious event will explore the transformative power of salutogenic architecture in shaping a healthier society. Under the theme “The Mission for a Salutogenic Healthy Society in Singapore – Fostering a Healthy Environment for Healthy People,” WCDH 2025 will emphasize the role of design in health and well-being, shifting from a disease-centric healthcare model to a preventive, salutogenic approach that promotes overall wellness. With over 90% of our lives spent indoors, architecture profoundly influences our mental well-being, cognitive function, and overall health. Salutogenic design, integrating architecture, psychology, and health sciences, provides an innovative framework to create spaces that enhance quality of life, stimulate positive mood, and foster social well-being. As we navigate an ecologically sensitive era, urban planning must prioritize meaningful, manageable, and interconnected spaces that maximize human potential. WCDH 2025 will present a rationalized design philosophy, emphasizing community, environmental sustainability, and holistic health benefits.

Key Themes & Sessions

The WCDH 2025 congress will explore 11 key themes, focusing on how design impacts health and well-being:

- Salutogenic & Hospital Design: Enhancing therapeutic environments through architecture.
- Urban & Environmental Sustainability: Integrating nature and climate resilience in city planning.
- Healthy Aging & Public Spaces: Designing for an aging population and community well-being.
- Workplace & Educational Spaces: Creating health-focused homes, schools, and offices.
- Technology & Policy in Healthcare: Examining AI’s role in hospital design and shaping future health policies.

These sessions, led by global experts and policymakers, will redefine health-promoting architecture for a better future.

Distinguished Speakers & Participants

We are pleased to welcome the government authority of Singapore, who will deliver the official welcome address on Thursday, October 30. A distinguished lineup of keynote speakers, researchers, architects, health planners, engineers, public health scientists, physicians, and policymakers will present groundbreaking research and practical applications. The congress will culminate in a high-profile panel discussion, where leading scientists and health ministers will collaboratively shape the future of global health policy discussing to explore health policy development from a global perspective, comparing approaches across different cultural and socio-economic contexts. By bringing together ministers from diverse backgrounds, we aim to foster meaningful dialogue and exchange valuable insights on health policy strategies.

Join Us in Singapore – A City of Health & Innovation

WCDH 2025 is a premier platform for collaboration, bringing together visionaries, innovators, and practitioners dedicated to advancing salutogenic design. With a dynamic blend of cutting-edge research presentations, engaging case studies, an interactive trade show, and a rich cultural program, this congress promises an unparalleled experience. We look forward to welcoming you to Singapore, where design and health converge to create a more sustainable and health-focused future.
